Snapshot View: Through its collaboration with Daimler Truck Financial Services, Electrada is poised to assist customers of Daimler Truck North America in transitioning to more sustainable transportation. "This partnership and its subsequent development will accelerate the proliferation of EV fleets across the country," said Kevin Kushman, Electrada's CEO. "Daimler Truck Financial Services and Daimler Trucks North America are industry leaders and seek to remove barriers to electrification through collaborative solutions that provide a more seamless, reliable conversion strategy for their customers."

This agreement aligns with Daimler Truck North America's expansive electric vehicle range and its sustainability goals, propelling fleet electrification and contributing significantly to carbon reduction. "Our vehicles will be at the forefront of converting fleet programs to EVs, but there is a great deal more to this conversion than building vehicles – those vehicles need to be powered by a robust charging program.
